Land Acknowledgement

The Federation for the Humanities and Social Sciences and York University are honoured to visit, and learn about, the Indigenous lands across Canada. We acknowledge the diversity of Indigenous peoples from coast to coast to coast, and we extend our respects to all First Nations, Inuit, and Métis peoples for their valuable contributions, past and present. We recognize that many Indigenous Nations have longstanding relationships with the territories upon which York University campuses are located that precede the establishment of York University. York University acknowledges its presence on the traditional territory of many Indigenous Nations. The area known as Tkaronto has been care taken by the Anishinabek Nation, the Haudenosaunee Confederacy, and the Huron-Wendat. It is now home to many First Nation, Inuit and Métis communities. We acknowledge the current treaty holders, the Mississaugas of the Credit First Nation. This territory is subject of the Dish with One Spoon Wampum Belt Covenant, an agreement to peaceably share and care for the Great Lakes region.

We recognize that the conference also presents each of us with the imperative to meaningfully acknowledge the land from which we share our individual and collective work. As such, we wish to emphasize the importance, not only of expressing respect for the Indigenous nations whose lands we occupy, but also of taking meaningful steps to break down colonial systems and worldviews that continue to shape our fields of study and dominate the academic institutions where we work. FMSAC is committed to improving its own governance and also encouraging the Federation, as a nationally funded and mandated organization, to respond actively to calls for the implementation of anticolonial and anti-racist measures. <https://native-land.ca/>

Reconnaissance du territoire

La Fédération des sciences humaines et l'Université York sont honorées de visiter et d'apprendre à connaître les terres autochtones du Canada. Nous reconnaissons la diversité des peuples autochtones d'un océan à l'autre et nous présentons nos respects envers tous les peuples des Premières nations, des Inuits et des Métis pour leurs précieuses contributions, passées et présentes. Nous reconnaissons que de nombreuses nations autochtones entretiennent des relations de longue date avec les territoires sur lesquels sont situés les campus de l'Université York, relations qui précèdent l'établissement de l'Université York. L'Université York reconnaît sa présence sur le territoire traditionnel de nombreuses nations autochtones. La région connue sous le nom de Tkaronto est sous la responsabilité de gardiennage de la Nation Anishinabek, la Confédération Haudenosaunee et les Hurons-Wendat. Elle abrite maintenant de nombreuses communautés de Premières nations, d'Inuits et de Métis. Nous reconnaissons les détenteurs actuels du traité, les Mississaugas de la Première Nation de Credit. Ce territoire fait l'objet du Pacte de la ceinture de wampum Dish with One

Spoon, une entente visant à partager pacifiquement et à prendre soin de la région des Grands Lacs.

Nous reconnaissons que la conférence présente également à chacun.e d'entre nous l'impératif de reconnaître de manière significative le territoire à partir duquel nous partageons notre travail individuel et collectif. À ce titre, nous tenons à souligner l'importance non seulement d'exprimer notre respect pour les nations autochtones dont nous occupons les terres, mais aussi de prendre des mesures significatives pour briser les systèmes et les visions du monde coloniaux qui continuent de façonner nos domaines d'études et de dominer les établissements universitaires où nous travaillons. L'ACÉCM s'est engagée à améliorer sa propre gouvernance et à encourager la Fédération, en tant qu'organisation financée et mandatée à l'échelle nationale, à répondre activement aux appels à la mise en œuvre de mesures anticoloniales et antiracistes.

President's Welcome - Andrew Burke (University of Winnipeg)

Hello and welcome to FMSAC 2023! After a long pandemic hiatus, we are back in-person with one of our biggest conferences yet at 170+ participants! This is also a hybrid conference, so while I look forward to seeing many of you at York, I am also eager to hear presentations and discussion by those of you who are joining us remotely. What makes the 2023 conference especially exciting is that it is our inaugural meeting as the Film and Media Studies Association of Canada. The program bears out the importance of this change. While our members have always worked on media beyond film, revising the title of the organization formalizes this breadth and this year we have numerous presentations and panels on television, streaming, apps, platforms, gaming, and other media forms.

We once again have three marquee events at our annual conference. First, we welcome Paula Amad (University of Iowa) as this year's Martin Walsh Memorial Lecture. Dr. Amad's work on cinema, aerial vision, and modernity fundamentally rethinks the history of seeing and technology. Second, this year's Gerald Pratley Lecture will be delivered by Caroline Klimek (York University), whose work on Artist-Run Centres and XR Media fits so wonderfully with FMSAC's extended remit beyond cinema. Finally, we are thrilled to be collaborating with the Black Canadian Studies Association (BCSA) on a very special keynote conversation between Cheryl Foggo and Sylvia D. Hamilton. The Hamilton Dialogues will return in their usual form in 2024, but we could not pass up the opportunity to extend our schedule just a bit on our final day to include this dialogue between two luminaries of Canadian cinema.

Special thanks goes to Michael Zryd, our local coordinator at York, whose work on the ground demanded both a sense of the whole event and attention to the finest of details. Thanks, too, to Kester Dyer, Shannon Brownlee, and Daniel Keyes for their invaluable work in putting the conference together, and to our adjudication teams for vetting proposals and the Student Essay Prize, which will be announced at the FMSAC members book launch.

Welcome to York and bonne conference!

Bienvenue du Président - Andrew Burke (Université de Winnipeg)

Bonjour et bienvenue à l'ACÉCM 2023 ! Après une longue interruption pandémique, nous sommes de retour en personne avec l'une de nos plus grandes conférences à ce jour avec plus de 170 participants ! Il s'agit également d'une conférence hybride, alors, bien que j'aie hâte de voir beaucoup d'entre vous à York, je suis également impatient d'entendre les présentations et les discussions de ceux d'entre vous qui se joignent à nous à distance. Ce qui rend la conférence de 2023 particulièrement excitante, c'est qu'il s'agit de notre réunion inaugurale en tant qu'Association canadienne d'études cinématographiques et médiatiques. Le programme confirme l'importance de ce changement. Bien que nos membres aient toujours travaillé sur les médias au-delà du film, la révision du nom de l'organisation officialise cette ampleur et, cette année, nous avons de nombreuses présentations et panels sur la télévision, le streaming, les applications, les plates-formes, les jeux et d'autres formes de médias.

Nous avons encore une fois trois événements de renom à notre conférence annuelle. Tout d'abord, nous souhaitons la bienvenue à Paula Amad (L'université de l'Iowa) qui donnera la conférence commémorative Martin Walsh cette année. Les travaux de la Professeure Amad sur le cinéma, la vision aérienne et la modernité repensent fondamentalement l'histoire de la perception visuelle et de la technologie. Deuxièmement, la conférence Gerald Pratley de cette année sera donnée par Caroline Klimek (Université York), dont le travail sur les centres d'artistes gérés et les médias XR s'inscrit si merveilleusement dans le mandat étendu de l'ACÉCM au-delà du cinéma. Enfin, nous sommes ravis de collaborer avec l'Association d'études noires canadiennes (AENC) à une conversation très spéciale entre Cheryl Foggo et Sylvia D. Hamilton. Les Dialogues Hamilton reviendront dans leur forme habituelle en 2024, mais nous n'avons pas pu laisser passer l'occasion de prolonger un peu notre calendrier lors de notre dernière journée pour inclure ce dialogue entre deux sommités du cinéma canadien.

Nous remercions tout particulièrement Michael Zryd, notre coordonnateur local à York, dont le travail sur le terrain a exigé à la fois un sens de l'ensemble de l'événement et une attention aux moindres détails. Merci également à Kester Dyer, Shannon Brownlee et Daniel Keyes pour leur travail inestimable dans la mise sur pied de la conférence, ainsi qu'à nos équipes de sélection pour la vérification des propositions et le Prix de rédaction des étudiants, qui sera annoncé lors du lancement du livre des membres de l'ACÉCM.

Bienvenue à York et bonne conférence !

Artist-Run Centres + XR Media: How Canadian Artists are Making Tech Accessible

Abstract:

This presentation, which is drawn from my larger project called “Granting Gold: Funding and Exhibiting New Media Technologies at Canadian Cultural Institutions” explores the role of Canadian artist-run centres (ARCs) in responding to the emergence of the XR, or Extended Reality, industry, with a specific focus on Trinity Square Video (TSV) and Inter/Access in Toronto. ARCs serve as vital community centres for artists across Canada, providing opportunities for exhibitions and events, and facilitating workshops. However, their role in Canadian cultural heritage is often unnoticed or misunderstood. My research examines how TSV and Inter/Access have responded differently to the XR industry: TSV has concentrated on building infrastructure and democratizing technology for their community, whereas Inter/Access has supported emerging artists and marginalized communities through exhibitions and workshops. In the project, I have employed a mix-method approach, examining cultural policy, expanded cinema scholarship, and ethnographic research. I have conducted interviews and attended exhibitions at TSV and Inter/Access over several years, providing an intimate understanding of the factors that shape how these institutions respond to the needs of their artistic community. Case studies of virtual and augmented reality apps and exhibitions focus on experimenting with software, hardware, and content, highlighting the ARCs’ willingness to embrace failure and build and promote their artists’ digital art skills while also addressing the barriers of access and questions of technological obsolescence. My work aims to draw attention to the important role that ARCs play in the Canadian art ecology and examine what larger cultural institutions can learn from community-run art organizations’ approach to the XR industry.

Bio:

The 2023 Pratley Award winner, Caroline Klimek is a Ph.D. Candidate in the Cinema and Media Arts Department at York University. Her SSHRC-funded dissertation focuses on how Canadian cultural institutions are incorporating XR media by examining how film festivals, artist-run centres, and legacy institutions are including virtual and augmented reality into their mandates and how that affects their exhibition practices. She is currently a sessional instructor at Wilfrid Laurier University, the University of Toronto Information School and at York University. She is published in the Canadian Journal of Film Studies, Shameless Magazine with three book chapters in forthcoming anthologies and two peer-reviewed journal articles to be released later in 2023.

10.30am-12noon / 10h30-12h00 : SESSION / Séance A

A1 (ACW 206) Screening: Queer Coolie-tudes.

Queer Coolie-tudes (dir. Michelle Mohabeer, 2019, 87min)

The Queer Coolie-tudes event features a screening of Michelle Mohabeer's 2019 feature-length documentary Queer Coolie-tudes and a companion roundtable that will put the filmmaker in conversation with film scholars whose expertise in experimental documentary, queer filmmaking practices, and diasporic cinemas will illuminate the ways in which Mohabeer's work elaborates on and extends key themes and practices in contemporary radical filmmaking.

Queer Coolie-tudes is a queer ethnography which utilizes twin concepts of opacity and queer coolie-tudes to construct its decolonial aesthetics and mode of storytelling that involves testimony and an oblique queer creole narration. Mirroring, Francophone Caribbean philosopher Édouard Glissant's concept of opacity, to reclaim the slur of Coolie and compellingly visualize the intergenerational lives, histories, creole identities, familial relations and sexualities of a diverse range of subjects (artists, academics, and activists) from the queer Indo-Caribbean and Black Caribbean diasporas in Canada. The film is a nuanced poetics of queer Indo-Caribbean diasporic creole identities, weaving mixtures of Black and Indian, Portuguese and Indo-Caribbean, Indo Chinese-Caribbean, genderqueer, disabled and elder body, and drag gender identity performance.

The screening will take place at 10:30pm; after lunch, a roundtable will be held in session B5 from 13:30 - 15:00 featuring Mohabeer, Prof. Malini Guha (Carleton University), Natasha Bissonauth (York University), and Andil Gosine (York University).

Michelle Mohabeer is a Guyana-born, Toronto-based award winning filmmaker/media artist and photographer. Her first feature Queer Coolie-tudes is a creative essay documentary which was released on February 1, 2019. Prior films include experimental documentaries: Blu In You (2008), Coconut/Cane & Cutlass (1994), plus various shorts Echoes (2003), Tracing Soul (2000), TWO/DOH (1996), EXPOSURE (1990) and the experimental narrative Child-Play (1996). These films have exhibited worldwide at over 400 festivals, conferences and galleries, and collected by university libraries across the U.S, Canada, the Caribbean, and Australia. Mohabeer is a lecturer at York University and her films and videos have been profiled and written about in: Film

Fatales, The Romance of Transgression in Canada, North of Everything, The Bent Lens, Women's Experimental Cinema, and Queering Canada: A Collection of Essays, The Caribbean Review of Gender Studies, among others.

‘Pictures that move and ship[s] that fly’: ‘Professor’ F.W. Brinton and the kinship between early aviation and early cinema

Abstract:

Humans cannot fly. They also cannot rewind time. But they invented two machines to do away with these limitations: the airplane and the motion picture camera. This talk explores the intertwined early evolution of these two inventions understood as the twin dream machines of modernity. As Iowa’s first major film exhibitor and a life-long inventor of airships, “Professor” F. W. Brinton exemplifies the curious traffic between aviation and motion pictures in the early twentieth century. Focusing upon the overlapping attractions of “pictures that move and ship[s] that fly” in Brinton’s promotions, I argue that early aviation forms a missing link in the broader technological and cultural landscape from which films emerged. The talk ultimately contends that the nexus between these two iconic inventions bears consequences for popular, military, and avant-garde contributions to what I term the “cin-aereal century.”

Bio:

Paula Amad is an Associate Professor of Film Studies and Chair of the Department of Cinematic Arts (Jan 2016-July 2018; August 2019-December 2020) at the University of Iowa. She teaches and researches at the intersection of film history and film theory, with specialization in French cinema, nonfiction film, archive and memory studies, feminist film history, postcolonial theory and visual studies, and the relationship between photography and film.

She is the author of Counter-Archive: Film, the Everyday and Albert Kahn's Archives de la Planète (Columbia University Press, 2010), which was deemed a highly recommended book by the Kraszna-Krausz Foundation Book Awards (2011), and numerous articles in journals such as Modernism/Modernity, Representations, Camera Obscura, History of Photography, Cinema Journal, Film History, and Framework. She is currently completing a second book focused on the airplane and camera as the twin vision and dream machines of early twentieth-century modernity.

Event Program / Horaire de l'événement

7:30 pm	Doors open
8:00 pm	Part I - Screening of Her Silent Life and Seeing Her
8:40 pm	Part II - Expanded cinema performance of Worth More Standing
9:15 pm	Q&A with Lindsey McIntyre and Peter Bussigel
9:45 pm	Reception

The process of finding one's place in fractured familial histories is the starting point for a series of films and performances produced by McIntyre. Between 2007 and 2012, she produced a series of five short films under the title Bloodline concerned with some of the lost histories and intergeneration traumas of her Inuit matrilineal heritage. The program opens with Her Silent Life* (31 min, 2012), an experimental documentary which seeks to understand the complex life of her Inuk great grandmother Kumaa'nnaq. Seeing Her* (3 min, 2020), made several years later, offers a sparkling repose presenting an analogue experimental animation that builds on elements explored in the previous film, animating Kumaa'nnaq's beautiful beadworks.

The second half of the program is an expanded cinema performance featuring several 16mm projectors (Lindsay McIntyre) and digital sound (Peter Bussigel). Worth More Standing* (40 min, 2022) is “a looping 16 mm performance exploring the framework of tree/human relationships on unneeded Pacheedaht territory at Fairy Creek. A site of civil disobedience, it is also a place of recognition, passion, and dedication for the more-than-human beings with whom we share the planet. High contrast images are hand-processed, optically printed, contact printed and altered, creating a portrait of this landscape and its employ at the hands of humans” (69th International Short Film Festival of Oberhausen 2022: 349).

Artist Biographies

Lindsay McIntyre is a filmmaker and artist of Inuk and settler descent born on Treaty Six territory in Edmonton, Alberta. She works primarily with analogue film, exploring place-based knowledge, portraiture, and personal histories. Process cinema techniques, celluloid manipulation, and handmade emulsions support her autoethnographic explorations, which often extend to film performances. Her current projects are concerned with land use and resource extraction in the circumpolar north. She is an Associate Professor at Emily Carr University of Art + Design in Vancouver, Canada.

Peter Bussigel is a composer and intermedia artist working with sound, video, and performance. His projects include audiovisual instruments, interactive software systems, sound installations, experimental videos, and concert games. Peter Bussigel is an Assistant Professor in New Media + Sound Arts at Emily Carr University of Art + Design in Vancouver, Canada.

Co-presented by: Women and Gender Studies et Recherches Féministes (WGSRF), Viral Interventions, York's Queer Summer Institute, Department of Cinema & Media Arts, Sensorium: The Centre for Digital Technology, Archive/Counter Archive, Hemispheric Encounters, and Sexuality Studies.

A screening/panel for Congress 2023, featuring new works by BIPOC alums of the York University MFA program in Production. Curated by Mary Bunch & John Greyson, moderated by Alison Duke

In this moment of accelerating visibility and violence, how do queer/trans artists put our worlds on screen? For some, the act of the procession -- gestural, flamboyant, performative, both in the street and home -- can also be a politics of resistance, a poetics of agency. This panel/screening will feature new queer/trans hybrid films that navigate issues of the procession, testing tactics of performance, hybridity, transgression, and the translocal. Following the screening, the artists will talk about their 'processions' with moderator Alison Duke.

- UNTITLED, Ostoro Petahtegoose (2022, 3 min). Digital performance confronting discourses about Trans-Indigenous sex work.
- KAILI, Leena Manimekalai (2022, 10 min). On the eve of Pride, the goddess explores downtown Toronto (Kaili has been the target of a global Hindu fundamentalist censorship campaign, accusing Manimekalai of blasphemy)

- SWORDS & TRANSVESTIS, Ribamar Oliveros (2022, 5 min). Trans brincante performer Pinto at the centre of her local Reisado festival in north-eastern Brazil.
- I AM YOUR GHOST, lee williams boudakian (2021, 10 min). Three generations of Armenian immigrants navigate rituals of grief and gender.
- OF WHAT DEATH WE DIE, Esery Mondesir (2022, 8 min.) Mondesir searches for memories of his dad, who died of AIDS in 1980 in Port-au-Prince.
- CALL ME UNCLE, Amil Shivji (2022, 8 min.) Tanzanian queer singer Tofa Jaxx writes a song about the life of HIV/Trans activist Aunty Ali.
- MELA JALOOS, Abdullah Quereshi (2022, 12 min). Queer/trans futures collide at the Madho Lal Hussain shrine in Lahore.

Black Canadian Filmmakers in Conversation: On the Imaginings of 'Nah'
Sylvia D. Hamilton and Cheryl Foggo

Vanier College-VC 001

This session, in collaboration with The Film and Media Studies Association of Canada (FMSAC), aims to bring together two award-winning Black Canadian filmmakers to engage in a discussion about their work in conversation with the Black Canadian Studies Association's theme, 'Nah'. These two filmmakers' contributions have significantly widened the Black Canadian experience. Their presence at our annual meeting as keynote speakers in conversation will be a crucial and exciting discussion at a time when narratives about Blackness, representation, and creative expression have never been so front and centre in the Canadian discourse. Our conference committee has chosen the exclamation 'Nah' as an expression, response, and exhortation of Black refusals. As a colloquial use of language, this event aims to push the boundaries of how we contend with reckonings and re-imaginings at Congress 2023 in a cultural context where Blackness remains ignored, challenged, and in some cases, diminished by pervasive anti-Blackness, both in formal and informal settings. Through imaginative articulations of 'Nah' this BCSA-FMSAC event aims to delve into and depart from past/ongoing practices that precipitate the need for such refusals. This keynote will extend the conference theme while exploring questions about the current state of Black filmmaking in Canada, and its continued links with Black Canadian scholarship.

Victor Phillip Dahdaleh Building-DB 0001

The Bandung Conference held in 1955 in Indonesia attended by representatives of 29 African and Asian national leaders launched the “Third World” as an aspirational political project, and yet is largely unknown to students of Communication. Yet, the vision of a new transnational “information order” that would emerge in the UN in the following decades can be reimagined as an attempt to contest what W.E.B. Dubois would call the “global color line.” This would be premised on reversing the violence of colonial media infrastructures designed to extract land and labor, surveil, discipline and humiliate colonized subjects. How was this reversal and redress imagined and carried out, even for a short moment in history? This presentation reckons with the complex legacy of Bandung and subsequent internationalist efforts by anti-colonial nationalists, socialists, black liberation activists and feminists to liberate colonial communications and information infrastructures with an anti-racist (racialist in the language of the era) agenda and praxis.
